Context

New Zealand Police is the lead agency responsible for reducing crime and enhancing community safety. We work in partnership with individuals, communities, businesses and other public sector agencies to achieve our vision of Safer Communities Together. The National Intelligence Centre (NIC) sits within Service Delivery Group, which contributes to the achievement of our vision through enabling the transformation of Police to deliver Our Business.

The role of intelligence is to actively enable decision maker advantage through the use of a three stage intelligence lifecycle: Detect, Understand and Impact. Through this, intelligence professionals are able to interpret the criminal environment and provide intelligence products that inform decision makers, ultimately enabling them to prevent crime, reduce road trauma and enhance community safety. Intelligence achieves this when it provides accurate, relevant and actionable insights.

Intelligence encompasses people, products and processes. It is critical for decision-making and Police depend on intelligence at all levels. Police cannot function effectively without high-quality intelligence.

Purpose

The purpose of the Service Delivery group is to transform our service to deliver Our Business.

The purpose of the National Intelligence Centre is to actively enable decision maker advantage at strategic, operational and tactical levels for Districts, the Executive and other domestic and international agencies. To deliver this, the NIC utilises a three phase intelligence lifecycle: Detect, Understand and Impact.

The intelligence products designed, developed and delivered by the NIC support decision maker advantage across all six drivers of demand: organised crime, drugs, mental health, families, youth, alcohol and road policing, as well as national security. Through the provision of relevant and timely intelligence products, the NIC is instrumental in preventing crime and enhancing community safety.

The NIC takes a leading role in ensuring ongoing and enhanced coordination between District Intelligence Units, other Police intelligence functions and domestic and global agencies. Through the leveraging of collective knowledge and skills, the NIC positions itself as a leader in intelligence.

To support the delivery of these outcomes the Manager High Risk Targeting Teams leads the development of intelligence products and support in relation to national security operations, domestic activism, acutely disaffected persons and manages the Child Sex Offender Registry. The role provides leadership to national security intelligence related obligations between New Zealand Police and wider government and ensures the relevant Police body is informed of any obligations and reporting requests. The Manager will develop and maintain trusted relationships with internal and external stakeholders, both domestic and international, in order to affect the efficient exchange of information whilst seeking opportunities to operationalise that information and share best practice.

In performing this role the Manager High Risk Targeting Teams will work collaboratively and seamlessly with other managers and teams across the Intelligence Service Centre, and other partners, to provide an integrated approach to the delivery of high quality and innovative work.

The purpose of leadership in this role is to lead the tactics for Our Business and enable our people to deliver them.
